BURR & ROBINSON,
PROPRIETORS.

SATURDAY, MAY 9, 1874.

THE "LOCK OUT" IN ENGLAND

Our despatches show that the labor question is just now assuming greater prominence than usual in England, and that the lock out in the agricultural districts may prove the beginning, only, of more serious troubles. The phrase "lock-out" sounds oddly to American ears, but it is simply an agreement of employers to give no work to a certain class of employes, and originated in the manufacturing districts where mill-owners locked the doors of their manufactories against obnoxious workmen. In the case the day laborers on the farms in several counties asked an addition to their wages of one shilling, or about twenty five cents, per week, and to support their demand have formed unions in imitation of the operatives in mills and in mechanical employments. The farmers by whom they were employed resisted this attempt to secure an increase of wages, have discharged the workmen to the number of several thousands, have formed a defense association and will employ no man belonging to the unions. Both laborers and farmers have been holding meetings, the excitement resembling that of a presidential campaign in this country, and no one knows what the end will be.

It may seem strange that a demand for an advance in wages should at this season of the year, when agricultural operations are just well under way for the year, should be so stubbornly resisted by the farmers and cause them to take such decided and apparently imprudent steps; but there are many things to be taken into consideration which do not enter into the calculations of the Atlantic. In the first place very few of the farmers own the land they occupy, the most of them renting it at prices which do not allow them a wide margin for profit, and they claim that they are paying as much for labor as they can afford in view of the amount they are required to pay for rent. Another cause of the action without the general discontent on the land to the control of the laboring men, the farmers believing that if once peace is made there will never cease to be a call for more—that cheerful submission to organized action would encourage it to further and more unreasonable demands. In the meantime both organizations stand firm, and the farmers have themselves gone to work in the fields, superseding, it is said, "to find that they can do more and better work than the men."

The wages the insufficiency of which the striking laborers complain, appear ridiculously low to American eyes and would be indignantly refused by men performing the same or much harder work in this country. A correspondent of the London Times, in order to show how ill a good man on the farm receives the case of a man whose nominal wages was three dollars and fifty cents a week, but who by doing piece work, and aided by his daughters, his wife and two or three daughters, managed to make six dollars and a half per week. But the amount of wages paid in England for all classes of labor averages much less than in the United States, and the real question in this case is, can more be earned there by this sort of work? What the farm laborers should have is a fair proportion of what is earned by the capital and labor employed, and upon this authorities differ. Mr. Wade said to be a former resident of Ohio, announced to an anti union at meeting at Newmarket the center of the agitation, on Wednesday, that he could bring any number of men from Ohio, who would gladly work for fourteen shillings per week in place of the laborers locked out, but as fourteen shillings amount to about four dollars in our money, this statement looks as though Mr. Wood did not know what he was talking about, or, what is more likely, was endeavoring to intimidate the laborers. Mr. Jacob Bright, Mr. Morley Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Arch claim that agriculture labor is insufficiently paid and are doing all they can for the unions. The Times in discussing the matter, takes neither side of the controversy, but hopes, as every body must, that some mode of adjustment will be found, and finds some encouragement for its hope in the fact that the parties have not as yet become embittered against each other.

It appears that the farmers may gain the contest in this instance, for they have capital and the landed proprietors on their side, while the laborers having nothing to depend upon for subsistence but their hands and such contributions as may be made by the friends of the movement—the latter, of course being a precarious reliance for any extended time—must yield the point they have taken or leave that portion of the country. The agitation of the labor question caused by the strike and its consequent lock-out, is unquestionably to the cost and must in the end result in bettering the condition of the laboring classes in England. Men like Jenkins and Arch and Bradlaugh, who have entered heart and soul into the crusade in behalf of the work ingmen will not rest until permanent relief is obtained and if this cannot be secured at home they will seek it abroad. Already they are arranging for extensive emigration to Canada, and they will find plenty of room, plenty of work and good wages for all they may wish to do on their own country.

A Boston Globe reporter interviewed Messrs Watterson of the Louisville Courier Journal, White of the Chicago Tribune, Halsted of the Cincinnati Commercial and Bowles of the Springfield Republican—four leading journalists, once known as Liberal Republicans, who were reported to have come to Boston to agree upon some plan for the resurrection of the liberal-republican party, and discovered that their journey had no political purpose whatever. Their statements regarding the position of the West on inflation are interesting, showing, as they do, that the most intelligent of the people do not endorse the Congressional expressions of their representatives.

During a speech made by Mr Loughridge, of Iowa, in the U. S. House of Representatives, upon the Indian Appropriation bill, it appeared that the Modoc war cost $6,000,000. The total number of Indians is about 375,000, of which 244,000 are on reservations, 50,000 are in roving bands, and the remainder are in Alaska.

The Senate Finance Committee held another meeting yesterday on the House currency bill but reached no conclusion in regard to any additional points of importance.

The American Geographical Society will be represented at the millennial celebration in Iceland by Dr. Hayes, the Arctic explorer. Dr. Hayes will take his departure from New York about June 1, and leave Dundee, Scotland, in a vessel specially chartered for the voyage to Iceland.

It is estimated that $1,200,000,000 is owed to workingmen in this country by employers, savings bank, etc. Inflation of the currency, which reduces its value, would rob the workingmen of a part of this money.

The body of Dr. Livingstone was very much decomposed when it arrived in England but the condition of the bones of the lower part of the body, of which there had been no suspicion, on account, the result of the hits of a lion over thirty years ago, was so clear that the identification of the body was placed beyond all doubt.

Miss Turner, the recently elected pastor of the Unitarian Church in Melbourne, Australia, celebrated her installation by reading that chapter of Corinthians in which women are commanded to keep silence in the churches.

The St. Louis Republican makes this pertinent suggestion.—"Inflation ticket for 1876—For President, Oliver P. Morton, of Indiana, for Vice President, John A. Logan, of Illinois. Platform—To get out of debt as fast as we can, and keep out deeper."

REMARKABLE SCENES IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—The Hall of the House of Representatives during this session has been the scene of events of more than ordinary historic interest. At the beginning of the session there came the wierd, attenuated form of the Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, the cynosure of all eyes. With a grace as delicate as it was magnanimous the House accorded him the privilege, extended only to one other, of selecting his seat, without the usual form of drawing by lot, again when he spoke for the first time, the House massed itself about him, eager to hear every word from the infirm veteran, and gave him such attention as has seldom been equalled in our Congressional halls. A few days ago the eulogy pronounced by L Q C Lamar, of Mississippi, on Charles Sumner transfixed, as it were, every one present in the House. The Speaker sat with folded arms and gaze intent throughout its delivery while a silence unbroken by a cough prevailed the chamber. All this was considered eminently proper. But the other scene, the emancipated negro sitting in the Speaker's chair, presiding over the House of Representatives, while Judge Parker, of Missouri, was making an eloquent appeal in behalf of enfranchising the Indian and elevating him to citizenship—that is the scene which will make the history of the session memorable to American annals. The honor of presiding over the House was accorded to a colored representative for the first time in the person of Joseph H Rainey, the Representative of the First South Carolina district, who was born a slave in Georgetown, in 1832. During the war he was forced to work on the fortifications of the Confederates in Charleston, from whence he escaped to the West Indies, returning to his native town at the close of the war. He has been a member of Congress several times and is highly respected by the members of this House. It was to this member that the late James Brooks went at the close of the Credit Mobilier matter and thanked him for the friendship he had shown him during the discussion, and other evidences of his esteem, regarding that his bondage challenged his admiration, and as a debt of gratitude thenceforth he would be the friend of the colored race.

IS THE WEST A UNIT OF FINANCE? We have already shown that the assumption that the voice of the West is unanimous for inflation is false and groundless. Further evidence comes to hand in the shape of a list of 116 newspapers in the West which have expressed an opinion on the President's veto of the Senate Finance bill. These papers represent the States of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas Nebraska, and Missouri, and are the exponents of all shades of party opinion, Independent, Republican and Democratic. Of the 116 heard from, 51 sustain the President's veto, 42 condemn it and 13 have expressed no opinion sufficiently decisive to indicate their position. Most of the papers included in the list are dailies, expressions of opinion from the weekly press not having come in to any considerable extent. Among the newspapers opposing inflation and sustaining the President stand such influential journals as the Chicago Times, Tribune, Journal and Staats Zeitung, the Springfield, (Ill.) Register, Rock Island Argus and Union, Quincy Whig, Fort Wayne Gazette and Sentinel, Detroit Tribune, Post and Free Press, Lansing Republican and Journal, Milwaukee Wisconsin, St. Paul Pioneer and Press, Burlington, (Iowa), Gazette and Hawk Eye, Kansas State City and Commercial, Omaha Herald, Omaha Herald, and St. Louis Republican, Globe and Times. To these may be added the Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche, Register and Ledger, and Chattanooga Times. In Ohio the Cincinnati Gazette, Columbus State Journal, Sandusky Register, Toledo Commercial, and other influential papers take the same position.

From such facts as these it is evident that the cry that the West and South are a unit for inflation is a demagogic invention, and has no foundation in fact. The truth is that there is a great deal of enthusiasm among the ignorant, as well as in the North and East, on this question of finance; and the point at issue is not a matter of opinion, but a contest of principle, of incredible ignorance. —Boston Journal.

TWO CITIES.

BY PHEBE E. BEXFORD

I caught as I sat in the sunset,
I read with solemn awe,
Of the Revelator's vision,
And the city that he saw
In which the gates are jasper,
And streets are paved with gold,
And whose wonderful beauty
He half was never told.

And I thought of another city
That is not far away,
Its moonlight and the sunshine
Across its marbles play
Its houses are long and narrow,
And the roofs are green and low,
And never a care or sorrow
Its silent dwellers know

There is never a sound of weeping
In this city on the hill,
There is never the sound of tumult
In the streets so green and still
The dwellers have done forever
With the old life's strife and din
For whom the gates of that city
Have opened to let them in.

I have known some who grew weary
Of life so full of loss,—
And the bitter, bitter burden
Of a never lifted cross
And they turned to the silent city,
With its peace so deep and sweet,
As I found in its cool, green by ways
So safe rest for their weary feet.

Some day when my work is over
Life's lesson learned and said,
Thy will bear me out to a dwelling
In the city of the dead
Where the low green roof is over me
Of my dwelling on the hill,
I shall be done forever
With earth's woes and ill
I shall rest the tramp and the hustle
Of the hurrying march of life,
And find in that strange, still city
The rest that comes after strife

THE WHITE ROVER.

BY RITA HARTER

They sailed the fair sea where the White Rover,
When they in by sanched her on the brimming tide
Staunch and true was to ride the broad seas over
All with Queen Mary spread for sunny canvas wide

And a thing of beauty, forth she sailed to wander
With the world uncertain ever to and near
And to every tide and tempest
And she was all in storm and sunshine many a year

But at last a rumor grew that she was haunted,
That a ghost of her dead lover was in bad Revenge
Called up by the witch's curse sounded,
And where rock upon her mooring sent alone

But ever was returning. Fleet or lagging
Ever sure to find the place and hope's at night
The sea's homeside never to leave or slighted
But to the shore to rest in safety

I look and saw ochimbed gave up the battle
Used to cross it of the weighed like lead,
Then I saw the White Rover sailing Pacific,
Easy sail on the shore to rest spread

And I saw ever before the gale of my fretted,
I saw her to spirit the black and hope's at night
The sea's homeside never to leave or slighted
But to the shore to rest in safety

And I saw the fleet schooner all hull standing
Of the sea by a hurricane that passed the bay
Was never I saw the White Rover I hardly weighing
Then I saw the Rover rested and homeward

I saw them rest hoof from shattering where
They watched,
That I saw them, tossing white and dumb
And night then I in perfect rest to meet
As I was with the strength way and hull safe

But ever was returning. Fleet or lagging
Ever sure to find the place and hope's at night
And her
